郭怡鈴

I'm a graduate student of the Dept. of Business & Management, National University of Tainan (NUTN), Taiwan. I hope to expand the international exchange between the Ontology Application & Software Engineering (OASE) Lab. and the Tsuji Lab. of Osaka Prefecture University, Japan.

My study plan in OPU contains: (1) Translate the SPICE system into Chinese, and define the maturity level for E-Learning of SPICE; (2) Model the maturity for information security; (3) Co-operate a paper, "Giving Awareness of Maturity by Capability Assessment," with the Tsuji Lab. members to submit to FUZZ-IEEE 2011.

I stay in Japan from 20th January to 20th March, 2011. During these two months, I visited some cities such as Osaka, Nara, and Kyoto. I have had many experiences here, including Japanese life, foods, beer, friends, Kimono, and culture. Because my country and Japan are near in Asia, I am used to the foods, and all of the Japanese foods are my favorite. Actually, I also appreciate everyone who took me to taste the delicious foods and sightseeing of each spot.

The Tsuji Lab. is very similar to the OASE Lab., full of lively, kindly, and friendly members so that I'm used to the life here. I felt very lucky and happy because I had a good opportunity to stay in the foreign country as an exchanged student. I love the life of Japan. That is why I didn't feel homesick and would like to stay here forever.

But on the other side, there are some differences between the Tsuji Lab. and the OASE Lab., such as the meeting time and what we are doing at the meeting. The most difference is there are many foreign students such as from China, France, Indonesia, and Republic of El Salvador in the Tsuji Lab. I can learn a lot of things from the foreign students, such as foreign culture, foods, language, and different international etiquette. Because I have the chance to get along with them, I would like to visit more countries in the future.

During these two months, I enjoyed studying and sightseeing. Moreover, I try to learn the simple Nihongo, Spanish, French, and cooking. Besides, this is the first time that I have lived in the dormitory, so I also learn to be independent by myself.

In the future, I hope to see everyone again, not only in Japan but also in Taiwan, even in other countries. I am looking forward to meeting with everyone again. Even though I only stay two months, this will be one of the best memories of my study life.

All in all, I am very pleased to join the Osaka Prefecture University as an international exchange student for two months. I really appreciate all of you who support my life here. These days will be important memories in my life. Thanks a lot!!
